FARMERS ARE BENEFITED
BY THE LEGISLATIONEnacted By Democrats—How Republicans Came Far Short Of Promises.

(Cincinnati Enquirer, Independent.)
"The more than 100,000 inquiries received by the Farm Loan board from persons desirous of information as to process of operation of the proposed banks indicates the need of just such a system and points out with marvelous distinctness the relief which the measure will bring to the agriculturists throughout the United States.

"This rural credit legislation will within the next five years completely transform life upon the farms, and millions of owners of cultivated lands of the country will experience financial relief through its beneficial and helpful methods.

"The good roads, the auto vehicles, the telephones, the electric light plants, the motor boats, the suburban and rural electric railways have made rural life much pleasanter than before their advent. Now, with those who employ borrowed funds able to secure money at more reasonable rates, and many with broad acres and rich fields able to obtain loans unobtainable at any rate in the past in many instances, or when obtainable, then at exorbitant rates, these conditions must make for a vast improvement in the home and the business life of the farmers.

"But it is not only the farmers who will be benefited by this advanced and progressive legislation of the Democratic party.

"The manufacturers of agricultural machines, farm implements and of all classes of materials used upon the farms or in farming operations will reap great and prolonged benefits from this wise and helpful legislation passed by a Democratic Congress to further the interests of the people of the United States.

"It is all right for our Republican brethren to say we would have passed such a measure; our administration favored it, our Congress, if elected in November, would have done this for the farmers, but there stand before the people of this country sixteen years of McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft, with Republican Houses and a Republican Senate, and there was not act for reform of the currency, no federal reserve bank legislation, no American shipping bill, and not a line of legislation giving financial relief to the farmers of the United States.

"The record of good intentions is sponged out by Republican failure to act in the interests of the masses of the American people."

THE COUNTRY EDITOR AS A PREVENTER OF CRIME

As a force for the uplifting of morals and the prevention of crime the country newspaper editor stands head and shoulders above the most efficient police force that can be assembled in any community.

Publicity—that one word—explains it all.

Little does the offender object to paying the small fine that is imposed in a police court. Little does he mind his friends knowing that he has stepped momentarily out of the straight and narrow.

But after the court proceedings his steps invariably lead to the local newspaper office. Cornering the editor in some remote part of the sanctum, a conversation something like this follows:

"I guess you heard that they pulled me last night. I forgot myself and wouldn't have had it happen for the world. It doesn't make so much difference about myself, but just for the sake of my wife and children and other people, I wanted to ask if you would do me the little personal favor of leaving it out. You know I have always been a steady subscriber and always use a want ad. in your paper when I need anything, and I just thought that maybe you could leave this out this time. It won't ever happen again, you can bet on

WHAT CATARRH IS

It has been said that every third person has catarrh in some form.

Science has shown that nasal catarrh often indicates a general weakness of the body; and local treatments in the form of snuffs and vapors do little, if any good.

To correct catarrh you should treat its cause by enriching your blood with the oil-food in Scott's Emulsion which is a medicinal food and a building tonic, free from alcohol or any harmful drugs. Try it.

Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

that, and this is the only time I'll ask you."

Here is a true story of a little southern city. A leading attorney was arrested for gambling. He didn't mind paying the small fine, but immediately after court he entered the newspaper office and said: "I'd rather have my right arm cut off than have my name go in the paper."

He meant it, too. Petty crime would increase a hundredfold were it not for the horror of publicity.

Whether or not it is better to leave such items out or to print them is a problem for each individual editor to decide. There are good arguments on both sides. But nevertheless the editor is the greatest preventive for crime that any town has.

WHY I AM FOR WILSON.

By Ida M. Tarbell.

Does any American to-day see bigger, or more dispassionate or more clearly than President Wilson? I believe that Progressives will see this; if they don't it is a reflection on their intelligence.

President Wilson has proved his fitness to lead the progressive civilization. True, he has not yet had time to convert the man who cries for his pound of flesh, nor alter the views of him who fails to see that bloody war is but the primitive expression of savage weakness promoted by the ignoble desire of conquest or revenge. But he has forced respect for neutrality, and he has handled his delicate Mexican inheritance with tact and wisdom.

TEN COMMANDMENTS
AS FELT IN AUSTRALIA

Last February I ventured to hint that it was a good thing that the Ten Commandments went into effect before the referendum was adopted, for if put to vote now not one of them would be likely to pass.

The Bulletin of Sydney, Australia, followed up the suggestion by offering a guinea for the best set of ten commandments suited to Australian conditions and temperament. Now the first commandment for the Australian is evidently: Thou shalt not say "Thou shalt not" to him, because then he will go and do it out of a spirit of independence. So the Bulletin awards first prize to the following, as written in Australasian and in a form most likely to be effective:

1. Yer might as well stick for Ostralia.
2. Yer might as well stop borrowin'.
3. Yer might as well keep from usin' too many blank swear words.
4. Yer might as well send yer kids to Sunday School—it won't hurt 'em.
5. Yer might as well 'ave a bit of learnin'.
6. Yer might as well give yer boss a fair deal—yer might be boss yer self some day.
7. Yer might as well stick to yer own old woman (they're orl alike).
8. Yer might as well make yer own tools and duds.
9. Yer might as well pay yer debts.
10. Yer'll blabby well 'ave ter be a better stousher than the next bloke.—[New York Independence.]

HADN'T SEEN SONS SINCE
THE GALVESTON FLOODUntil Few Days Ago—Family
Torn From Him By Sweeping Waters.

Bartlett, Tex., Oct. 28.—W. M. Cehand, a farmer near Bartlett, was reunited a few days ago with his two sons, James and Rudolph, whom he had mourned as dead for sixteen years.

The Cehand family were living in Galveston at the time of the great storm which swept over that city in September, 1900. When the flood swept in from the Gulf struck their house it collapsed and the members of the family were cast into the torrent. Mr. Cehand managed to catch hold of a piece of wreckage and clung to it for several hours while he was dashed hither and thither, and he was finally flung up on the mainland several miles from the site of his wrecked home.

When his house went down Mr. Cehand caught a glimpse of his wife and two sons as the mountain of water swallowed them up. The two boys, then aged three and five years, respectively, were holding each other in an embrace, and Mr. Cehand was endeavoring to reach them. That was the last he saw of any member of his family since that memorable day when they were torn apart in the raging storm until a few days ago his two sons, now grown to young manhood, alighted from the train at Bartlett.

Mr. Cehand made a long search after the storm to discover the fate of his wife and children; but he could obtain no trace of them. It appears now that the two boys were swept to a point on the mainland remote from the spot where their father landed and were found by a party of rescuers and placed in the hands of Sisters of Charity, who found them a home in a convent in a distant city. The older son, James, remembered his own name and that of his brother, and it was this that led to their ultimate discovery by their father. After remaining a few years in the convent they were adopted by a family living in California.

The two boys were making their home in Sacramento, Cal., when one day a few weeks ago an old friend of the Cehand family, traveling through California, saw James in the street and perceived the family resemblance. He questioned James, who told him that he was James Cehand.

The visitor then informed the boy that he thought a man named Cehand whom he knew in Texas was probably his father. Upon returning to this State the family friend informed the elder Cehand of his discovery. Letters were exchanged and the two young men came here and rejoined their father.

THE FIRST FULL TRIAL

First American Newspaper. The earliest attempt to set up a newspaper in North America was made at Boston in 1689, by Richard Pierce. The title was "Public Occurrences, Both Foreign and Domestic." Only one number was issued, bearing date of September 25, 1689, and only one copy is known to exist—the copy preserved in the Colonial State Paper Office, London. It was the intention of the publisher to issue the paper monthly, but the colonial authorities suppressed it immediately upon the issues of its first appearance.

A DOLLAR'S WORTH IN FINANCE OF THE WORLD

To many people the matter of foreign exchange is a mystery, and to hear that the American dollar is at par or above par in foreign markets means but little.

To-day in most of the markets of the world the American dollar is bringing a premium. Here's the way it worked out during the month of August:

In Russia$1.67
In England1.02
In France1.13
In Germany1.32
In Italy1.24
In Austria1.62
In Switzerland1.02

Wherever a premium exists foreign purchases are penalized in making settlements for American goods. Russian buyers, for example, had to pay for every dollar's worth of goods from the United States the number of rubles worth at par $1.67 in United States coin.

France, for instance, where the franc is worth 20 cents at par (19.3 to be exact), instead of paying practically five francs for every dollar's worth of American goods, had to pay nearly six francs for the same value in August.

It is the fluctuation of exchange rates which makes the Allies so eager to float loans in the United States, and keep the borrowed money in American banks. Then they can pay for their purchases of supplies from America in American money, and thereby avoid the premiums which exchange rates often exact.—[Idaho Statesman.]

URGES THAT CHILDREN
TAKE CARE OF TEETH

A recent investigation made by the U. S. Public Health Service in connection with studies of rural school children showed that 49.3 per cent. had defective teeth. 21.1 per cent. had two or more missing teeth, and only 16.9 per cent. had had dental attention. Over 14 per cent. never used a tooth brush, 58.2 per cent. used one occasionally and only 27.4 per cent. used one daily.

Defective teeth reduce physical efficiency. Dirty, suppurating, snaggle-toothed mouths are responsible for many cases of heart disease, rheumatism and other chronic affections. The children are not responsible for the neglected state of their teeth. The ignorant and careless parent is to blame for this condition—a condition which hampers mental and physical growth and puts a permanent handicap on our future citizens. School teachers can and are doing much in inculcating habits of personal cleanliness on the rural school child, but this will fall of the highest accomplishment unless parents co-operate heartily and continuously. This is a duty which we owe our children.

Slugged and Robbed. South Bend, Ind., Oct. 26.—A. M. Trost, night ticket agent at the Lake Shore Depot, was slugged shortly after midnight and robbed of $1,040. He was on his way to the express office with the money when he was attacked by a lone man from behind. The latter fled with the money.

Quartz glass, for which we were once dependent on Germany, is now made in this country. The sand of Nebraska is best suited for the purpose.

A MERCILESS JUDGE

One Who Shows No Favor. A merciless judge is Father Time. Before him the weak and the wanting go to the wall. Only the truth can stand. For years the following statement from an Owensboro resident has withstood this sternest of all tests:

C. T. Fitzgerald, grocer, 1421 Fifth St., Owensboro, Ky., says: "My back was very lame and I had dull pains across my loins. My kidneys were sluggish to pass the kidney secretions. I felt depressed, had no energy and my head ached. Doan's Kidney Pills gave me immediate relief. I now have no lameness in my back and my kidneys are normal."

No Trouble Since. Over four years later Mr. Fitzgerald said: "I have had no occasion to use Doan's Kidney Pills since they benefited me."
